Structuring Sense: Volume I: In Name Only

Hagit Borer

Structuring Sense explores the adaptation among phrases notwithstanding outlined and buildings even though constructed. It units out to illustrate over 3 volumes, of which this can be the first, that the reason of linguistic competence might be shifted from lexical access to syntactic structure, Structuring Sense: Volume I: In Name Only from reminiscence of phrases to manipulation of rules. Its reformulation of the way grammar and lexicon engage has profound implications for linguistic, philosophical, and mental theories approximately human brain and language. Hagit Borer departs from either constructional techniques to syntax and the lengthy generative culture that makes use of the notice because the nucleus round which the syntax grows. She argues that the hierarchical, summary constructions of language are universal, no longer language specific, and that language version emerges from the morphological and phonological homes of inflectional material. In identify basically applies this radical method of nominal structure. Integrating learn in syntax, semantics, and morphology, the writer argues that nominal constitution is predicated at the syntactic cognizance of semantic notions resembling classifier, quantity, and reference. within the technique she seeks to cast off lexical ambiguity and type-shifting. one of the issues she considers are the translation of right names, the mass-count distinction, the weak-strong interpretation of quantifiers, partitive and degree phrases, and the structural illustration of the certain article. within the method she explores inter-language version throughout the homes of the morpho-phonological system. The languages mentioned contain English, Chinese, Italian, and Hebrew.
